

Associate Policy Advisor

Height Securities is an investment bank with headquarters in Washington, DC, that specializes in regulatory and policy research for institutional and corporate clients. Height is seeking an Associate Analyst to join our research team. The ideal candidate:

- Has 3-5 years of professional experience, preferably on Capitol Hill or within an agency
- Comes with strong relationships in Washington's policy and political communities
- Has an understanding of the legislative and regulatory levers at work in Washington that impact companies and capital markets
- Possesses some knowledge of capital markets
- Can quickly digest and offer intelligent analysis of ongoing developments and new information
- Has above-average writing and communication skills which require minimal editing
- Is a team-oriented individual who can take ownership of their work product and is not afraid to offer a strong opinion
- Thrives in a fast-paced, intense environment
- Must be able to study and pass the applicable FINRA license examinations (Series 7, 66)

The Associate Analyst will work directly with and be able to learn from a team of four seasoned analysts covering a wide array of topics that range from trade policy to tax policy. The Associate will conduct open-source research, provide written policy updates and analysis, attending hearings and events, and eventually interact with clients on a regular basis. This position is ideal for someone with a policy or quantitative background looking to strengthen their analytical skill set.
