

Investment Research Analyst

Height Securities is an investment bank with headquarters in Washington, DC, that specializes in regulatory and policy research for institutional and corporate clients. Height is seeking an Associate Analyst to join our research team. The ideal candidate:

- Has 3-5 years of professional experience
- Possesses a quantitative research skill set
- Possesses some knowledge of capital markets
- Can quickly digest and offer intelligent analysis of ongoing developments and new information
- Has above-average writing and communication skills which require minimal editing
- Is a team-oriented individual who can take ownership of their work product and is not afraid to offer a strong opinion
- Thrives in a fast-paced, intense environment
- Must be able to study and pass the applicable FINRA license examinations (Series 7, 66)

The Associate Analyst will work directly with and be able to learn from four Senior Analysts. The Associate will conduct open-source research, conduct quantitative analysis across a number of different companies and sectors, and provide written policy updates and analysis. This position is ideal for someone with a quantitative background looking to strengthen their analytical skill set.
